While Driving

The Highway Code applies to all drivers and road users in England. A breach of any of the laws contained in the Highway Code is a criminal offense, punishable by either a ticket, fine, penalty points or even, in serious cases, a prison sentence. The Highway Code is written in a user-friendly style and it also offers a number of recommendations, which are intended to encourage safe driving on England's roads.

Adults and children over the age of 14 must wear seat belts in cars and vans, if there are seat belts fitted. Children under the age of 3 years old must be in an approved form of child seat. Children under 12 or below 1.35 meters in height must also use a child restraint such as a booster cushion. There are exceptions for taxis and private hire cars.

Pedestrian and zebra crossings must be kept clear at all times. Drivers must slow down on approach and must give way to a pedestrian who has stepped onto a zebra crossing. Parking on the zigzag lines, which border pedestrian crossings, is prohibited and fined.
