Greenland is the largest island in the world but has a small population of 56,000. Many of these 'Greenlanders' live close to the coastline because a large part of the country is ... and glaciers. More than a quarter of all the people live in the capital, Nuuk. Since the 1960s, the country has had economic difficulties and social problems. Its traditional industry - and its biggest - is fishing but the country still imports much more than it exports. Now, however, life is about ... for many Greenlanders - and all because of the weather.

Most scientists agree that the world's climate is getting warmer and you can already ... in Greenland. For example, small icebergs - about the size of city buses - are floating near They have broken off from much larger areas of ice further out in the ocean because of the change in temperature.
